Axis strengthens its outdoor camera offerings

Axis Communications, the market leader in network video, is strengthening its outdoor camera offerings AXIS Q6032-E PTZ, AXIS P3344-VE and AXIS 215 PTZ-E.

Offering several unique features that make the installation and use of IP cameras in outdoor environments even more cost-efficient and reliable.

The new Axis outdoor cameras are outdoor-ready at delivery and do not require an external housing. In addition, the new outdoor-ready models are powered over the Ethernet via the same cable that carries video data. It's also offers remote zoom and remote focus capabilities and can withstand temperatures from -40°C to +55°C (-40°F to +131°F).

All Axis outdoor-ready cameras are IP66-rated, resisting dust particles as well as powerful water jets. The cameras are equipped with built-in heater and fan, ensuring optimal performance in all weather conditions.
