Chelmsford, MA-based Axis Communications to Host “Recruiting Open House” on November 12

With more than a dozen open U.S. positions, Axis executives and local employees will lead networking reception and discuss the culture, benefits and growth of the world’s largest surveillance camera manufacturer

CHELMSFORD, Mass. – October 30, 2013 – Axis Communications, the world leader in network video surveillance, today announced that it will host a Recruiting Open House on Tuesday, November 12 from 5:00-7:00pm ET at the company’s North American headquarters in Chelmsford, Mass inside the Axis Experience Center.

Sweden-based Axis Communications is a fast-growing technology company with the sole vision to innovate for a smarter, safer world. Axis, established in 1984, invented the first network-connected video camera in 1996 and today is the global leading provider of surveillance cameras with an ever-growing portfolio of intelligent network-connected devices and software.

The Recruiting Open House will kick off with a 30-minute networking reception with Axis employees and hiring managers, followed by a presentation about the company, its history and the future. Attendees will then have the opportunity to participate in an Axis Culture Panel to learn about the innovative products, growth, benefits and culture that led to Axis being named a 2013 “Best Places to Work” winner by the Boston Business Journal.

The night will conclude with breakout sessions so guests can meet one-on-one with representatives from specific departments – including Sales, Marketing, Technical Services and Finance & Operations – and a raffle prize will be awarded during the final group wrap up.

Axis Communications has more than 1,400 employees in 40-plus countries around the world, with more than a dozen positions currently open in the United States. Interested candidates can view and apply for open positions online.
